

A Proposal for a New World: An Epic Poem

- A world without war

War is the greatest destroyer of human life and potential. It is a waste of resources and a source of immense suffering. In a new world, there would be no war. Conflicts would be resolved peacefully through dialogue and negotiation.

- A world without poverty

Poverty is a terrible blight on our world. It is a cause of hunger, disease, and suffering. In a new world, there would be no poverty. Everyone would have access to the basic necessities of life, such as food, water, shelter, and healthcare.

- A world without suffering

Suffering is a part of life, but it does not have to be. In a new world, there would be much less suffering. People would be healthier, happier, and more secure.

- A world where everyone is equal

Equality is a fundamental human right. In a new world, everyone would be equal, regardless of their race, religion, gender, sexual orientation, or disability.

- A world where everyone has the opportunity to reach their full potential

Everyone has the potential to achieve great things. In a new world, everyone would have the opportunity to reach their full potential. They would have access to quality education, healthcare, and other resources that they need to succeed.

- A world where everyone is united by a common goal

In a new world, everyone would be united by a common goal: to create a better world for themselves and for their children. This goal would bring people together and help them to overcome the challenges that they face.

I believe that this world is possible. I believe that we can create a better world for ourselves and for our children. But it will take all of us working together. It will take courage, and it will take sacrifice. But I believe that it is worth it.

So I urge you to join me in this quest. Let us create a new world, a better world, for ourselves and for our children.

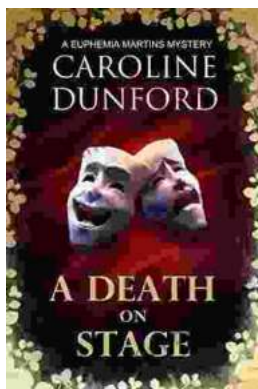

Together, we can make it happen.
